Three Insights to take with you from...
Making Music for All:
Redefining Success through Inclusivity with Annie Ray

Five ways to make space for more students:

- Reach out to special education teachers and ask how you can collaborate to include their students.
- Learn and implement strategies for differentiating instruction and making music accessible to diverse learners
- Invite students with disabilities to participate in your ensembles and provide any necessary support
- Focus on process over product and creating a welcoming environment for all students
- Connect with community organizations that can help provide resources and training
